A MALE ELEPHANT,

The first and only Male ever seen in this Country.

To be seen at the New-England Hotel, in Wood-Street, from Saturday the 19th inst. to the 26th inclusive.

THE ELEPHANT is not only the largest and most sagacious animal in the known world, but the manner in which it takes its food and drink of every kind, makes it one of the greatest curosities ever offered to the public.

The one now offered to the curious is a Male. The Male differs materially from the Female—his looks much more formidable and majestick with large tusks.

The docility of this animal surpasses that of any one ever exhibited at his place, and the number of tricks he will perform are too numerous to particularize:—among them are—He will draw a cork from a bottle and drink its contents, and then hand the bottle and cork to his Keeper. He will take his Keeper with his foot or trunk, and place him on his back; but what is most curious among his manœuvres, he will dance to musick, and very correctly.

He is eight feet high, his ears are two feet and two inches in length, and he will weigh between

FOUR & FIVE THOUSAND POUNDS.

Hours of exhibition from 9 o'clock in the forenoon till 7 in the afternoon.

ADMITTANCE, 25 cents—Children, under 12 years of age, half price.

PHILIP WINEBIDDLE.
Pitt township, Allegheny co. June 4,

PATENT GAS FIRE,

FOR STEAM BOAT.

A CONCENTRATED FUEL for Steam-Boats has been invented, consisting of Tar or other carbonaceous substance, commingled with Steam,

The apparatus is simple; the management easy and safe. It is a great auxiliary to a wood or coal fire, which it both enlivens, encreases and saves—for it seems to combine so rapidly with the oxygen of the air, as to prevent the wood from wasting or consuming so fast as usual, the blaze, notwithstanding, being very active and intense.

The apparatus consists of a double vessel of copper or iron, cylindrical, lying on its side, upon or rather between the boilers, if there are 2.

Tar, Turpentine, Rosin, Spirits, Oil, or other combustible fluid, being put into the inner one, steam is allowed to flow from the boiler through a pipe and cock into the space between and thro' a few holes on the upper side of the inner one to press on the surface of the tar, which being heated by the surrounding steam, is at pleasure driven out through a small pipe (having a stop cock) meeting and uniting with another pipe leading out steam from the space between—the continuation of the pipe then leads to the fire or flue. The longer this pipe (if kept hot) the better. It need not be more than a quarter of an inch in diameter.

In its way the tar is extremely attenuated and mingling with the steam. Some chemists are of opinion that by the attraction of its carbon, it decomposes the steam into the constituents of water, oxygen and hydrogen, and combines with them to form the highly inflamable Gasses, carbonic-acid and carburetted hydrogen, or if not thus formed in the pipe, they are produced at or near its orifice, which need not be more than the tenth of an inch diameter for a boiler of considerable size.

The only art in management, is to graduate the flow of the tar and steam to such proportion as that neither shall appear to predominate, and in[illegible]g care that the fluid be previously strained so as not to obstruct the pipe by any extraneous particles. This will easily be done by placing a seive over the reservoir, from which a pipe (having a stop cock) leads into one end of the tar vessel. There is of course a safety valve and a stop cock to draw the condensed steam from between the two vessels, formed there in the beginning of the operation, while the tar was at a low temperature. Its position on the boilers will, however soon heat it. Tar boils only at a much higher temperature than water—there is therefore no danger from it.

The advantages of this kind of fuel will be very great in long passages. No steam boat or vessel can navigate the Ocean without it; and it will be found economical and convenient in every situation.

Being of recent origin, it has not been put in practice in many instances, but in several, under my own observation, and witnessed by many persons, its effects are admirable.

This advertisement is intended to offer its use gratis to a few boats, whose proprietors shall first obtain a licence. The price of this improvement afterwards will be several thousand dollars per boat, which it will be found economical in most situations to pay. The patent right for local use will be for sale after its value shall be further tested.

Licences to use this invention will be granted by

JOHN L. SULLIVAN,
Assignee of the patent of Samuel Morey
Boston, February 19, 1819.

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 25, 1819.

The Lay Preacher.

No. V.

"Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was the son of his old age, and he made him a coat of many colours."

GEN. XXXVII. 3.

"Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher, all is vanity," and never did he say any thing more true. We are all too fond of trifles. That love of external decoration which the lords of the creation, with much self complacency, have been pleased to rank among female foibles, is in fact a trait of human nature. The fish-bone ornaments of the Esquimaux, the red paint of the Seminole, and the chains and seals of the Bond-street lounger, all owe their origin to the same principle, and are all worn with equal pride. Even the patriarch Jacob, who was called Israel, and made a prince among men, was not proof against "the lust of the eyes." Jacob was a wealthy, a powerful, and a wise man, the head of a numerous family, and the avowed favourite of his Maker. The history of his chequered life shews him to have been deficient in neither policy nor firmness. He had viewed the world with the eye of a traveller, he had felt affliction in a land of strangers, and he might well be supposed to have gathered wisdom by experience. But true to nature he distinguished his darling son above the rest of his offspring, by giving him a "coat of many colours." Thus unwisely did he gratify his parental pride, by administering to the vanity of his favourite, and exciting envy and rebellion in the breasts of his other children.

Jacob, however, did no more than all the world have been doing before and after him. The pride of dress, has in every age occupied the heads and hearts of a great part of mankind, and the gratification of this foible has produced great displays of ingenuity. They who "fare sumptuously every day," are not more liberal in their expenditures, than the more harmless prodigals who are dressed "in purple and fine linen." The man, indeed, who can pamper any of the human appetites is sure to be rewarded; & thus the happy artist, who, by a fortunate discovery, can remedy a defect of nature, or who can make that appear ridiculous which before was beautiful, becomes of as much importance, as the patriot who destroys a political bubble, or excites a political revolution. But "the mind of desultory man" is so capricious, and human affairs are so mutable, that the most happy invention of genius, struts but its hour on the stage and is then discarded. The ingenious artificer of dress who can convince us to-day that nothing is so healthful or so pleasant as a flowing robe, can demonstrate as clearly to-morrow that a pair of tight stays will materially assist the functions of nature, and give grace and flexibility to the body.—Thus stays, bishops, frizzled wigs, hoops and high heeled shoes, swords, bag wigs, cocked hats, and hand ruffles have all had their days. There are great men enough in the world who set fashions, and there are plenty of great dunces who follow them. An English king introduced long coats to conceal his own spindle shanks, and a Scotch king may have invented hand ruffles from a motive equally disinterested.

Jacob soon had cause to repent his imprudent partiality; the jealousy of his elder children was excited and they "sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites for twenty pieces of silver." Unhappy Joseph! could not thy youth, thy beauty, thy innocence or thy tears, move the stubborn hearts of those "unrelenting Jews?" Alas! in this sad dreary world of vice and folly, youth, beauty and innocence are most commonly the choicest objects of envy and dislike! The tears and the petitions of afflicted innocence penetrate only into the bosoms of the generous—and of such there are but few. In vain did Joseph weep—in vain did he sue for mercy—plucked like a tender flower from its parent stock—torn rudely from the endearments of home, and from the caresses of a fond father, he was sold into bondage, and borne away to a land of strangers. But he did not fall a victim to despair. In him the truth of an old adage was happily exemplified; for the same ill wind that deprived the luckless Jacob of his son, wafted our hero to prosperity and honour. One other trial only awaited him; Joseph was remarkably handsome and I presume graceful and easy in his manners; whether he was skilled in poesy, music and dancing, or any of those delightful accomplishments by which the female fancy is caught, I cannot say—but it is certain that he was a great favourite with the ladies. But this accomplished young gentleman was far from being vain of his personal attractions, nor did he become intoxicated by the admiration that was paid him. He soon became the chief favorite of Pharoah, and "he set him over all the land of Egypt." Thus was he rescued from the pernicious indulgence of a fond parent to become the governor of a great nation. Had Joseph remained at home, nursed in luxury, eating the bread of idleness and drinking from the cup of pleasure, he would in all probability have degenerated in a mere dandy. The fortune of Jacob was ample; and the little 'coat of many colours' aforesaid, was but the forerunner of many other extravagancies which the old gentleman would have lavished upon his hopeful son. But he was destined to a nobler fate: to exertion and usefulness, instead of laziness, vanity and dandyism.

Notwithstanding the happy denouement of this little tale, its moral remains unimpaired. Let parents beware how they encourage the love of dress, or enervate the minds of their children by allowing them to set their affections upon trifles. Let them avoid that undue partiality which awakens jealousies and heart burnings, brings the worst passions of the human breast into play, and leads to the worst of vice. By neglecting these precautions many are brought to exclaim in scriptural language—"my worst enemies are those of my own household!"

The celebrated song of "MISS BAILEY" was admirably hit off in French a few years ago, in all the spirit of the original. In turning over an old Critical Review, we find the following translation of the same song into Monkish Latin, by a reverend preacher of England. As a number of our readers are classical scholars, we consider that we are "labouring in our vocation," when we offer them an occasional treat of this kind, although some of our brother editors seem to think that the columns of a newspaper ought to be exclusively appropriated to the reception of dull essays, editorial dogmas, or personal invective.

'——nec fato. merita nec morte peribat,'
Sed misera ante diem.'
Seduxit miles virginem, receptus in hybernis,

"CALL AGAIN!"—An eccentric old codger, who had been a collector of newspaper debts for fifty years in various parts of the United States, lately died in New England, and on examining his papers the following curious statement was found in a memorandum book covered with parchment, which it is said he always carried in his breeches pocket.

"I have kept a regular and correct account of the number of times I have been requested, nay, obliged, by different individuals, to "call again!" with the expense accruing thereon; viz:—

During the 50 years,	6000 times.
Expense of 'calling again,'	2000 dolls.
Died or insolvent before I could "call again,"	1500 sub'rs.
Editor and proprietor's total loss,	9500 dolls."

On which the editor of the New England Galaxy remarks—"when it is recollected that this is the statement of but ONE of the numerous newspaper collectors in the United States surely all will exclaim, the editors of the public journals are, of all men, most miserable."

THE SEA SERPENT.

Capt. Wheeler, of the sloop Concord, of Fairfield, Conneticut, which arrived here from New-York on Monday evening last, informs us, that on Monday morning at 5 o'clock, Race Point, S. E. 15 miles, he discovered in the water, about 20 rods from his vessel, directly ahead, an extraordinary sea animal, moving pretty quick through the water, with his head erected four feet out of water; the length of the creature, distinctly seen above the water, was at least 50 feet; he appeared to be in joints, with a number of protuberances, and appeared somewhat similar to a string, of barrels afloat. The sea was perfectly smooth, and he was so near that Captain W. had the best opportunity of viewing him. He was visible about five minutes, when he sunk beneath the water, and disappeared for about eight or ten minutes, when he again arose on the weather quarter about the same distance as before. Captain W. now called up several of his men to view him.—In a few minutes he sunk again, and was not seen for two hours, when he again appeared on the weather bow, distance about fourteen rods, moving in the same direction with the vessel and very slow. He continued on the top of the water at this time about seven minutes, when he again sunk slowly beneath the surface, and was no more seen. Five persons on board the sloop, had a fair view of the animal, and they all agree, that he had the appearance of an enormous serpent moving with an undulatory motion through the water, with his head erected from four to seven feet, but his tail not visible. His head appeared to be about three feet in length, the eyes were discernible on his last appearance, and were as large as a horse's. In colour he appeared to be perfectly black. Captain W. had before been an unbeliever in the existence of a Sea Serpent, but he is now quite convinced. He and his men are ready to attest on oath to the statement here given.

STEAM MACHINE.

On Saturday morning last we witnessed an experiment, upon a small scale, made by Messrs. Foster and Hugus, of the practical operation of their lately invented steam machinery. The result was highly satisfactory to the inventors and a number of their friends present. Upon the application of steam, generated in a boiler of about 2 1-2 gallons capacity, the machinery darted into motion so quick, that the revolution of the wheels immediately acted upon by the pistion and slider could scarcely be counted, and the whole works continued to move with a regularity, uniformity, and harmony truly admirable. Should the confidently expected benefits result from the introduction of this improvement, there will certainly be room for complaisant comparison, on the part of the inventors, that while the men of leisure of our great cities, the emporiums of science, have been wasting their time with the puerilities of the Kaleidoscope, they have, in a village remote alike from the inspiring bowers of the academy and the encouraging sounds of the steam mill, during the intervals snatched from arduous professional and mechanical pursuits, conceived and completed this great invention.—Greensburgh Guz.

A Dublin paper says, the Right Hon. J. Foster is now the oldest Senator in House of Commons; having been, without intermission, a member of Parliament since the latter end of the year 1760, a period of nearly 59 years.

A severe shower of salt water lately fell in the parish of St. Mongo, Dumfriesshire. The following day, when the water had evaporated, the leaves of evergreens and branches of hedges glistened with chrystals of salt.

Melancholy and fatal Catrstrophe in the Borough.

Last evening, about 6 o'clock, the borough of Southwork was thrown into the utmost terror and confusion, by the explosion of a steam-engine on the premises of Mr. Smitherman, a sawer of mahogany and other woods, in White street borough: the report was as loud as the firing of a cannon. The copper was blown (a fact almost incredible) the distance of 300 yards, upon the roof of a ware house four stories high, where it is now to be seen, which it damaged considably; the engine house, and some of the premises adjoining, were blown down, & scarcely one brick left upon another. Mr. Smitherman, the owner of the premises, was taken out of the ruins in a dangerous state, and conveyed on a bed to St. Thomas' hospital; and shortly after, his son, a youth about 15 years of age, was taken up and conveyed to Guy's hospital, dreadfully scalded all over his face, neck, and lower parts of his body. The ruins took fire, and several persons were suspected to be under them. A fine stout young fellow, of the name of Strachan, who was on the premises, at the time the accident happened, was taken out of the ruins, his head was shattered in the most horrid manner; his body was lacerated & scalded; he died on the way to St. Thomas' hospital, where the body now lies. Lon. pap.

From the Port Folio for June, 1810.

In the CONCISE NATURAL HISTORY OF EAST AND WEST FLORIDA, by the worthy 'captain Bernard Romans,' we meet with 'such instances of longevity,' to adopt his own language 'as are not to be outdone in any part of America.'—Among others he mentions the case of the mother of count de Lucere, who died in consequence of breaking one of her limbs. It had been so much calcarizated by the gout, that it snapped as she went into bed. 'She died aged far above one hundred years.' The next case is that of one Mr. Francois, who lived on the river Poule. In September, 1771, says Romans, I called there, and the old man told me that he was then past 83 years of age, that the old woman, whom I saw putting bread into the oven, was his mother; and that she was one of the first women that came from France to this country; I saw her about her domestic business in many ways, very cheerful, singing, and running from place to place, as briskly as a girl of twenty. Mr. Francois told me, that at the age of sixty, he fell out of a pine tree, about fifty feet high, with his loins over a fallen one; that he with difficulty, recovered; and that had it not been for that accident, he would not, as he thinks, yet have been sensible of the heavy hand of time: that he was still a hearty cheerful old man, was evidently to be seen. When I came to the river Poule, in October, 1772, I met the same gentleman fishing at the mouth of the river, on my asking him whether this diversion was agreeable to him, he told me that his mother had an inclination to eat fish, and he was come to get her a mess; he was then on foot, and had five miles to come to this place, and as much back with his prey, after catching it—a very dutiful son this at eighty-five!

A few days since we were informed by a respectable and intelligent master of a vessel, that on the 1st May last, he and others, saw off the Table Land of Cape Cod, an aquatic animal, which exhibited an appearance different from any thing which he and they had ever before seen, although our informant has spent most of his life at sea, and in the whaling service. When the head of the animal was first seen, at a distance, it had, says our informant, the appearance of a man standing in a boat;—that soon after it approached in the direction of the vessel, the head immerging in the water as it advanced, and passed the vessel within thirty feet, then exhibiting the appearance of a large horse swimming, its nose projected, and leaving a wake as large as that of a vessel of 120 tons, under quick way. That the colour of the animal was brownish, that no fins were visible, excepting one like a flapper near the tail, which appeared under water to be somewhat indented. Our informant did not wish to appear before the public as a narrator; but communicated the above facts for our information; and which were fully confirmed by a gentleman who was a passenger with him.—*Bos. Receipt to fill a Newspaper.

His printer came running to the publisher of a newspaper, and said, "Sir, we have a space in the paper which we don't know how to fill.' 'Nothing easier, (said the publisher:) insert that last night an elderly gentleman, walking through St. James' Park, was knocked down by two ruffians, and robbed of his money, and his gold headed cane.' The printer soon after came back again, and told his master there were several words too many.—'Why then, (said the publisher) you may leave out the gold headed cane.'

ARABIAN NIGHTS.

The Sieur Galland, editor of the Arabian Night's Entertainments, had disgusted the literary people of his residence, by publishing his two first volumes half filled with insipid questions and answers of the sisters Scheherade & Dinarzade. Fretted with this tiresome folly, some young men came in the middle of a frosty night, and contrived all kinds of noises to arouse the author. After they had kept him for some time in suspense, with his head and shoulders exposed to the cold air, one of them said, Dear sister, if you be not asleep, I would pray you until break of day, which is near at hand, to go on with that agreeable story which you began.' Poor Galland, finding his own words so unmercifully turned against himself, shut his window, and, consulting his pillow, published the tales in his succeeding volumes without any more such ridiculous introductions.—London pap.

EXTRAORDINARY IMPOSTOR.

Last week upon the arrival of the Guilford Coach at Tooting, some of the passengers observed a man apparently hanging from the bough of a tree on the road side; they hastened to the spot, and found the man breathing; his feet touched the ground; they supposed that he had just tied himself up and intended to commit suicide. He was soon able to speak, and stated that he was driven by extreme distress to desperation, and had resolved to put an end to his misery; his statement excited the compassion of some of the passengers, and he was relieved; the parish officer visited him at a public house, and promised to give him more permanent assistance. On the following day he was taken before the Bench of Magistrates, which sat at Wandsworth, that he might be removed to his parish, when he was recognized by a number of officers as a notorious vagabond and impostor, who, about twelve months ago, obtained money by a similar trick at Fulham, where he tied himself up to a door post, and was immediately cut down and relieved; many other fraudulent tricks he had successfully played, and obtained a great deal of money by his impositions. He was convicted as a rogue and vagabond, and committed to the Sessions. ib

PITTSBURGH.

Friday, June 25, 1819.

A gleam of sunshine occasionally burst-s through the dark clouds of embarrass-ment which envelope our city, and keeps hope from expiring. In different parts of the town we have the satisfaction of observing some elegant and substantial fabricks rearing their heads in place of the miserable wooden shells which have so long disgraced our squares, and which, owing to the high rate of rents heretofore, have been kept from tumbling into ruins by the most grotesque patch-work expedients. These improvements and this display of the commencement of a better era taste and liberality, are proofs that our citizens are impressed with a conviction that days of substantial prosperity are yet to dawn upon us. They do not anticipate, however, that the sun of their future welfare will dart upon Pittsburgh the vertical rays of 1814, that ripened prematurely only to destroy the sooner. No! it will be the healthy heat of the temperate zone, that produces no mushroom growth, but which will advance our institutions by slow and sure degrees; the fruit will have time to fill completely, and the roots will strike so deep, that future ages will find our city still flourishing and rising into greatness.

The New-York and Philadelphia papers contain a great many new cases of hydrophobia. The ravages of this dreadful malady are becoming most alarming; the infection has been communicated to so many dogs already, that it is very likely a general massacre of these poor animals must take place before the citizens can rest in security.

It seems that some of the southern banks have commenced the plan of suspending specie payments; it is said, to be sure, to be only by way of experiment; but this, we take it, is only what the French call a facon de parler, a delicate way of announcing the disagreeable intelligence. The state bank of North-Carolina is lately added to the list of "the suspended." This is exactly what we expected. From the great quantity of southern notes which during the spring has been brought from Tennessee and Kentucky, we calculated that a terrible issue had taken place to the south. The Bank of the United States, which like Great-Britain, never misses a good opportunity of consummating the great plan for monopolizing the whole banking business of America, has taken advantage of the circumstance. Her branches are immediately ordered to draw into their vaults the whole amount they could; the order operated like magic; southern money is no longer a floating medium; the orders of the mother bank has operated upon its circulation, like the icy blast of winter upon the surface of our Ohio; it is congealed into inaction, arrested in its progress, and it will never again see the light until a courier is dispatched with it en masse, to demand an exchange. It is not quite certain yet who will be bit the most; the Bank of the United States or the state banks; the stoppage of payments by the latter, has in our opinion, something a little ominous; it seems very much as if they had heard of the arrangements to the north and west of them, and just stopped in time. It is almost a pity too that this contretemps has occurred; this money was flowing in a very handsome stream from the west and south west, and if the bank demon of the United States had not interfered, a great deal of good would have accrued from it, before it could have completed its grand circuit; we are deprived of this source now, and really we do not know where to look for another these hard times. It will not be long, however, before the suspending system will extend all the way to New-York; our eastern banks have only wanted the shade of an excuse for some time.

A certain Philadelphia Journal for which we entertain a high respect, is latterly devoting a good portion of its columns to Riddles, Charades, Conundrums &c. As the Philadelphians appear very expert in expounding these productions of genius, we should be happy if some lounging Oedipus would answer a proposition which we will state. Our western merchants, whom nothing will please but what is called par paper in the cities, have for the last year or two, been exercising all the poor bank notes of Ohio and Pennsylvania, which the city Brokers choose to rate below par; their incantations are producing the desired effect; the affrighted paper is fluttering back to the place from which they emanated with great rapidity, and is leaving a vacuum, which all nature (to use a philosophical term) abhors. These same merchants have calculated that when they have chased all the trash, as they call it, home to its dens, that a real, bona-fide specie medium will come into circulation; now we should be much gratified to know whether this calculation is just; as for example, the whole county of Allegheny, in which there is certainly not 150,000 dollars of available specie, whose merchants have to remit annually, 300,000 to purchase goods for the home consumption, and whose exports since the destruction of manufactures are nothing, can possibly establish any thing for a circulating medium to support the present state of trade and living? by way of collateral information also, we should like to know how the Bank debt of of one million of dollars is to be paid.

Democratic Republican Delegation Nomination.

The democratic republican delegates from the several townships of Allegheny county, assembled at the court house in the city of Pittsburgh, agreeably to public notice, on Wednesday the 16th June, 1819, when ARCHIBALD COON, was called to the chair, and CHARLES SHALER, Esq. was chosen Secretary; after producing the certificates of their appointment, and instructions from their constituents, the delegates proceeded to ballot for suitable persons for the various offices to be filled at the ensuing election, when it appeared that the following persons were duly nominated, viz.

WILLIAM MARKS for the office of Senator for four years for the district composed of Beaver, Butler, Allegheny and Armstrong counties.

SAMUEL POWER for the office of Senator for two years for said district.

JOHN WILSON, (of Elizabethtown,) JAMES C. GILLILAND and ALEXANDER BRACKENRIDGE, in conjunction with such candidate as may be recommended from Butler county for the office of Representative to the state legislature for the district composed of the counties of Allegheny and Butler.

CHARLES JOHNSTON of Pitt-township, as a suitable person for the office of county Commissioner.

NOBLE CALHOUN as a suitable person for the office of Auditor, and HUGH DAVIS as a suitable person for the office of Sheriff of Allegheny county.

Resolved, That WILLIAM PORTER and THOMAS GIBSON be appointed a committee to meet such committee as may be appointed for that purpose by the other counties composing our Senatorial and Representative district, at the house of James Carnahan, on the Butler road, in Deer township, on the third Monday in August next, for the purpose of aiding in carrying the foregoing into effect.

Resolved, That Robert Graham, William Courtney, Samuel Hare, Dr. J. B. Trout and Charles Shaler be appointed a committee of correspondence for the ensuing year.

Resolved, That the Statesman, Mercury and Gazette in Pittsburgh, the Palladium at Butler, the Beaver Gazette be requested to give the above proceedings a publication.

To "N."

Away with your arguments angry disputer,
Secure from your censure we soberly sit;
Tho' folly is fair game, before you can shoot her,
The weapon you wield must be wadded with wit.

If puns are pernicious, then prove them profane,
Accurst at the spring whence poesy flows,
Vain task! for the Muses have hallow'd the vein,
And the point of a pun permit even in prose!

Is it fair, cousin Critic, if punning you squeeze at,
And fail—thus to blackguard the whole of the trade?
A pun, my dear sir, is a thing not to sneeze at;
E'en the Pope in pun-tifical robes was array'd.
All the world from the flood have been lovers of jingle,
And it now may, I fancy, be safely inferr'd,
That 'tis no matter which, so we make the ears tingle,
If we play on a fiddle, or play on a word.

The head of Medusa you need not bring up,
You've made use of a head quite as frightful as this,
Altho' this may do sir, when over a cup,
No more upon that head just now, if you please;
Neither how the maids use you when stories you tell,
And May dews, Ah! you rogue, are fast falling around,
Care I, for I came not to bear off the belle,
But have made you sir, quietly give up the ground.

Go seek col. Boone and a refuge request,
Such a boon, when you ask will no doubt be allow'd,
No punster your solitude there will disturb,
For a pun stirs alone in the warmth of a crowd.
To the Falls of St. Anthony haste then away,
But from plans so fall-acious no good can accrue,
But execute yours—aye, inter it I pray,
'Tis a fall-i-see plainly will never suit you.

A salt lick was discovered some years since in a very deep valley on Twin creek, about 8 miles from Salem, Indiana —The owners very lately made an experiment at boring, and having penetrated a rock to the depth of about 4 feet, they struck the vein of salt water, which has been pronounced superior in quality to any in the western country.

A report is prevalent, that there is a considerable reinforcement on their way out for the military and naval departments in the Canadas. In tracing the origin of this rumour we find it had its rise in private letters, received, from high official characters in Britain, by their friends in this country. We are unable to say what numbers are expected; the most authentic accounts, mention eight regiments of infantry, one of Cavalry, and a proportional addition to the marines and seamen on the Lakes. We are equally in the dark as to the cause of this proceeding, while some say it is solely owing to a change in the destinations of some regiments, whose services are not required at home or in other stations: others assert that it proceeds from the high toned replies of the United States government in the explanation demanded by Great Britain on the Arbuthnot & Ambrister business.

THE WARM WEATHER.

The heat felt in our city for some days past has been excessive. The barometer, yesterday, we are told, indicated an atmospheric heat of 92 degrees. This most oppressive visitation is severely felt; from its sudden operation on the system, sickness may be apprehended.

A person who has resided at Bencoolen, in Sumatra, (about lat. 3 degrees, 50 m. S.) asserts that he never suffered so much inconvenience in that tropical region as in this city from heat. We should like to see our meteorological journals compared with those of Lima or Calcutta.

From the Jamaica Courant, May 1.

"Recruiting for the Independent service goes on, with much vigour in this City. Vessels appear off Port Royal and receive from the shore recruits by boat loads. Twelve canoes loaded, which missed some vessel these people intended to embark on board of, were landed on the palisadoes on Thursday; they consisted of about 60 or 70 in number & created some alarm in Port Royal, before it was ascertained who they were. Several came wandering into the town during the evening in the most pitiable condition, begging for something to satisfy their hunger! which is but a prelude to their future sufferings. They have been misled, if they suppose the treasures of Mexico & Peru, will be at their disposal. Whatever injury they may inflict on the Mercantile interest of Kingston, not one person, who has embarked in the cause will benefitted by it. They will neither receive honor nor emolument. Most of the Europeans will be assailed by disease, and ere long their carcases will be the prey of vultures, and their bones will bleach on the plains and shores of South America, a monument of their folly and indiscretion.—Those able to withstand the climate, will become wanderers, who in the end, will be glad to fly to any country which can give them bread."

The Governor has been pleased to issue a Proclamation, rescinding the one previously published, prohibiting the exportation of provisons.

MAD DOGS.

An observer, of the various communications on the subject of averting the bite of those animals, is surprised that no alternative other than the appropriation of the public money in the shape of unequal and intolerable taxation, has been suggested to rid the city of those animals. It is no doubt familiar to many who have visited the European cities, that in many of them the Police obliges the owner of every Dog that is suffered to roam at large in the city, to place on their snout an iron ring, suspended from his neck by two small chains attached to another, which encircles it; which effectually prevents the animal, were he ever so disposed, from biting, in some instances leather is substituted and fastens with bucklers, which might answer the purpose with more economy; the neglect however is punishable with fine and imprisonment, superadded to the destruction of the animal, for which a portion of the fine is awarded to the destroyer.

HYDROPHOBIA.

We learn that another instance of this awful malady has occurred in the person of a respectable coloured woman of this city. The physicians of the Dispensary exerted themselves to save the unfortunate patient but in vain. Two men, one in the District of Southwark, the other in the Northern Liberties, were bitten by mad dogs a few days since.—Union.

NEW BEDFORD, June 11.

A letter has been received from Wm. Willshire, Esq. dated Mogadore, April 17, in which he mentions his expecting in a few days an express from Wadinoon with terms for the redemption of Lemuel Gifford, late of brig Mary of this port, wrecked about twelve months since on the Coast of Barbary. He also enclosed a letter he had received from Gifford, who informed that he was seventy-five days with Job Miller, who was shot by the natives and his thigh broken; that when he left Miller he was not able to walk. Gifford said he had been kept by Hamet about three months, who employed him twenty-seven days driving camels from the south, and forty days digging up bushes. He had changed masters, & had been employed by his new master four days out of nine in backing mud; he had given him a pair of shoes and a shirt, but kept him at very hard service. We sincerely hope it will not be long before both Gifford and Miller will be restored to their country and their friends.

WINCHESTER, (Va.) June 5.

John King, the murderer of Mr. Goss, was tried about two years ago in Fredericksburg, found guilty of man-slaughter, and sentenced to the penetentiary for 18 years. An appeal was made for a new trial, and he temporarily lodged in the town jail from whence he made his escape, but being apprehended last month in Cincinnati, passed through this town yesterday under proper officers, for his former place of trial.

[We should like to know how the state of Virginia acted to get this fellow out of Cincinnati; the officer must certainly have slipped in when it was term time in some of the neighbouring counties; there must undoubtedly have been an evacation of as well as vacation in Hamilton county.] *Ed. BOSTON, June 11.

Phenomenon.—A few days since, at Sandy Bay, Cape Ann, the tide rose ten feet in a few moments, and as suddenly ebbed. In the rapidity of the ebb a boat was overset, and the person in her was drowned. An important spring on Mr. Trask's land, then became dry, and has continued so. Many of the inhabitants of the vicinity think there was an earthquake.

Niagara Falls.—Some time ago it was stated that Mr. Porter, of Black Rock, was building a bridge from the main, to Goat Island.—This stupendous undertaking is at this time completed, and safe and convenient stairs erected to descend to the bottom of the falls where a boat is kept to convey visitors to the British side. The road from Buffaloe to the falls, has been considerably improved. To those who have visited this deligh tful part of our country, it will be unnecessary to recommend them to lodge on the American side; to strangers who intend to see this unrivalled spot, we can assure them, that bad indeed will be the accommodation on this side, if it does not exceed those at Forsyth's, the only tavern on the British side.

Specie Payments.—The bills which have passed Parliament restricting the Banks of England and Ireland from paying specie for their notes is a measure of policy more than necessity. In the debate on the subject, the Marquis of Lansdown (an opposition peer) said, that as a member of the secret Committee on bank affairs, he knew that there was specie enough in the bank to answer all demands which could be made on it; and that the time was not far distant when unlimited specie payments might be safely allowed.

From London papers.

UNEXAMPLED DEPRAVITY.

On Friday last a young man by the name of Thomas Hopkinson, underwent the awful sentence of death on the front of Derby jail, after a career of guilt, which, although short, seems to have been marked by an extraordinary degree of profligacy. His age was but twenty years, and between the ages of fourteen and twenty, he confessed, to the best of his recollection, to have committed the follow offences. His confessions were taken before W. A. Lord, Esq. one of the justices of the county of Derby. Cutting at five different times horses manes and tails, and two cows' tails; cutting off the feet of a living sheep, in the turnpike road; two highway robberies; breaking into butchers' shops three different times, and stealing thereout whole sides and joints of mutton; breaking into one house, one shop, one pantry, two corn-mills, and one turnpike house, and stealing thereout flour, meat, clothes, money, &c. robbing gardens twenty seven different times; stealing one poney; stealing poultry 95 different times, two hundred and nine fowls, twenty one geese, nine ducks and fourteen turkies; stealing at thirty two different times sixty five pecks of wheat; stealing seventy different times ninety two rabbits; stealing at twenty different times one hundred and twelve pecks of potatoes; stealing at twenty different times eighteen sheep & three lambs, skinning one of them alive; milking cows in the night time, belonging to sixty different persons; stealing at four different times one hundred and eighty pigeons out of dovecoats; setting fire to corn-stacks, & attempting to fire others on various occasions. To this catalogue was added an almost incalculable number of minor offences, so that scarcely a day seemed to have escaped from the commencement of his career of guilt without the perpetration of some offence, the fruits of which were spent in the worst species of debauchery. He was finally condemned at the last Derby Assizes for highway robbery, having previously turned King's evidence against four of his companions for setting fire to the stacks of hay and corn in the farm yard of Col. Halton, all of whom were executed.—This wretched youth was a weaver by trade, and up to the age of fourteen was brought up with great propriety. He then unhappily became acquainted with a youth by the name of Jackson, one of those who terminated their existence on the scaffold for firing the stacks of Colonel Halton, and by him was led on to the irregularities above described. Jackson was the son of a depraved father, who stood by while his son was launched into eternity, and who became a candidate for the office of executioner to Hopkinson. Hopkinson did not seem to feel the awfulness of his situation, and died without exhibiting any symptoms of remorse. He hoped, however, that his death would operate as a warning to others, and ascribed all his crimes to the evil example of his vicious associates.

25,000 Tickets at 10 Dols.

WITHOUT DEDUCTION.

To draw THREE times a week, and 1000 numbers each day. Prizes payable without deduction, Sixty days after the drawing is completed.

INTERNAL NAVIGATION, the object of the above scheme, must be allowed by all, to be of the highest importance to these United States and every good citizen must feel himself deeply interested on every intimation of undertakings, having Internal Improvement in view, being set on foot, and be desirous of aiding according to his abilities, towards the promotion thereof.

Under these impressions, the Commissioners in presenting the above Scheme to a generous public, feel a confidence of general and universal support and encouragement, but more particularly from their sister States, Pennsylvania, New-York, Delaware and Maryland; who, we may safely say, have never appealed in vain to their sister state of New-Jersey; but on the contrary, have been, and ever will be, generously supported by her, in the like and other improvements.

As to the Scheme, the commissioners have endeavoured to suit it to the circumstances of all The low price of tickets will preclude very few from an opportunity of securing an independence for life, or acquiring a very handsome remuneration for the trifle advanced.

The many rich prizes it contains, with the others, will all be paid without deduction at the Camden Bank, where the money received for the Tickets will be deposited immediately, for the sole use of the Lottery.

Although there are 25 Capital Stationary Prizes amounting to ☞ $67,500, one for each drawing day, yet there remain afloat as many large and valuable prizes, amounting to the sum of $152,500, as are generally to be met with in a whole Scheme, and the whole payable without any deduction therefrom. And for the accommodation of the fortunate adventurers in this Lottery, who may wish to receive their money immediately, a provision will be made at the said Bank for the payment of the prizes the VERY DAY they are drawn, on allowing the customary discount, as in Philadelphia or New-York.

The Lottery will be drawn in Camden, opposite the city of Philadelphia, and the Manager flatters himself that such encouragement will be given by a generous public as will enable him in the course of a very few weeks, to announce in the papers of the several states, the day the drawing will commence.

Contractors will be allowed a liberal discount.
